

Pipeline to mineral-rich West Africa

Multi-sector group Azinor is a conduit for investors and entrepreneurs searching for opportunities in Angola.

Portugal provides an effective business and trading gateway to the Portuguese-speaking African nations. And the Lisbon-based Azinor Group, with its extensive and diversified distribution network in Angola, is a thriving example of how that gateway works.

Azinor has maintained a substantial presence in the mineral-rich West African state for more than 20 years, with consistent growth. Throughout this time, the group has increased its presence in Angola with the establishment of local companies.

Initially specializing in food, it soon expanded to other sectors to become one of the leading importers and distributors of products such as pharmaceuticals, vehicles, heavy equipment, building materials, furniture and telecommunications.

Apart from trading and commerce, Azinor has achieved a very important industrial position with recognizable capacity to assemble and manage new production units.

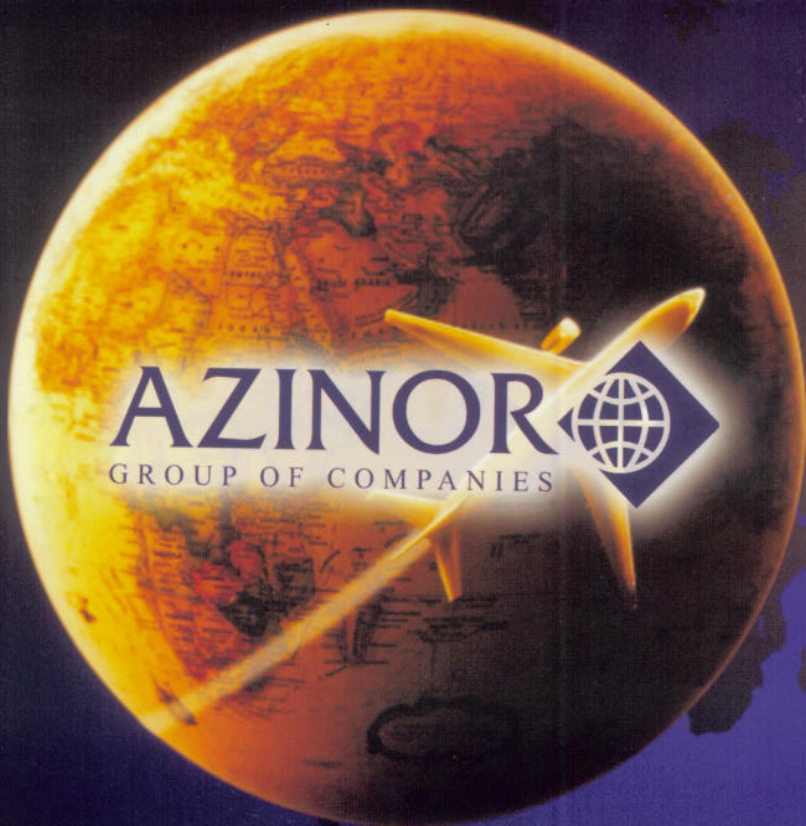

The Angolan market has experienced huge growth, in the region of 20% per annum, in the past few years. Luanda, the capital, is now a sophisticated city where demand for goods and services has grown exponentially. This growth has motivated investors and turned the country into a place of opportunities.

In this context, entrepreneurs hoping to establish themselves in Angola have an extra advantage in doing business through Azinor. With its know-how, acquired through years in the Angolan market, the group is the ideal partner for businesses that want to flourish in the country.

Azinor welcomes international partners with new technologies or business concepts that can be introduced to Angolan investors.

The group's latest venture is building the Sana Luanda Royal Hotel, Luanda's first five-star facility in the city, with 230 rooms and 50 suites; and the four-star Sana Cabinda Park Hotel, with 120 rooms.

Just about everyone knows we are the gateway for business in Angola
